THE LOCKED ROOM

Chapter 1 · Where am I?

Once upon a time, a man woke up in a room in a beautiful old house. His head's hurt, and he can hear Mozart. He wears gray clothes, but no shoes. He's locked in the room with an expensive chair, and a table - there's paper and pen on it. The only thing he can see from the windows is only a green field.

A man, in black clothes, asks him questions, but he can't answer them. The man gives some water to him, but everytime he drinks it, he falls asleep. Later, the man force him to drink the "water" with a gun. I think, there's something wrong with that drink.

Chapter 2 · Questions

The man wakes up, and the other man in black clothes starts to ask the questions again. But everytime he says "I don't know" the man hits him in his face. When the man goes, he starts to remember something: he was lying in a field, and a man with a big dog was standing behind him. The man hits his head with a gun. He doesn't remember more, and he thinks, he's gonna remember more the next day. Now I'm sure that he has lost his memory - but what about the other man?

Chapter 3 · No more time

The next day, the man with black clothes is asking the questions again, but this time the man also tells him that he can't tell him anything. Then the man leaves, and he starts to remember again. He remembers that he's watching a house in a blue coat, and he sees a white Jaguar going into the house. After that, he remembers that he can see two people. They've got a box. Then there's a noise behind him, and a bump on his head... he stopped thinking, because he could hear some people talking. The man in black clothes and a woman are talking about that they have no more time, only two more days.

Chapter 4 · Out of the Locked Room

The man hears someone locking the door, and going away, but they left the key in the lock. The man found a clever way to get the key out of the door, and he got the key. He listened carefully, but outside that was quiet, so he got out of the room. He locked the door, and took the key. He found himself in a corridor, and he saw a lot of doors. He entered a room, and found expensive and famous paintings, so he called the police.

Chapter 5 · Who am I?

The man in black clothes and the woman noticed that the man wasn't in the room. They decided to kill him, but the police arrived. The man showed the police the paintings, and the police arrested the woman, and the man in black clothes. One of the policemen called him in his name, and told him about that he is just a small thief.
